Circleville's two-hour parking law in the downtown district became effective Friday, but the police department was hampered in its enforcement by lack of signs. Metal signs for the streets and alleys in the district were ordered several weeks ago but they have failed to arrive. "We can do nothing about the parking until we have the signs," Police Chief William McCrady said Friday morning.

District Measured
The department has measured the downtown streets marking off every 100 feet for a sign. They will be installed immediately on arrival.

In addition to the limited parking regulations, the ordinance passed by council prohibits parking trucks in excess of 18 feet in the downtown district except for loading and unloading and parking in front of private drives.

PLUTO has returned.

The brownish-red dog that disappeared more than 10 days ago is back at the Mykranz drug store, his usual stamping ground. Some of his friends believe Pluto could not stand all the political chatter that was going on so decided to take French leave.

Anyway, he walked into the store as big as life Thursday afternoon promptly fell to the floor and put both feet high in the air, looking dead but being, in truth, very much alive.

Some believe he returned on the Democratic landslide.

BOND ISSUE FOR WAYNE SCHOOL BEATEN IN VOTE

Wayne township's $2,500 bond issue for an addition to the West-fall school failed despite the fact that it carried by a majority of 96 to 56, school officials announced Friday after receiving the official vote.

Quick Action of Guards Halts General Break Near Montgomery

"PEN" INTERIOR WRECKED

Machinery Destroyed by Maddened Prisoners

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 6.—(UP)—Prisoners searched the bad lands around Kilby prison today for nine convicts who escaped in a 20th century prison break that almost freed a high percentage of several hundred inmates.

Three convicts acting in unison struck at the vital nerve center of the prison—its power house. In a flash, they had overpowered the civilian engineer and thrown the prison into darkness. An instant later, the disabled telephone system and prison authorities were apparently hopeless to avert a mass break.

Guards Act Quickly

Fortunately the guards in the prison cotton mill and cell blocks were quick-witted. The instant lights went out, heavy doors slammed shut, keys turned in locks, and the prisoners, if they had known of the plot and had planned to escape, were helpless.

For more than an hour bedlam reigned in the mill. The screams and shouts and ravings of maddened men filled the night, punctuated by the rain of sledge hammer blows on machinery which the convicts were destroying systematically in the dark. Above this uproar was the steady shrill of the prison sirens, summoning aid from as far as Montgomery, eight miles distant.

In the prison office, authorities strove desperately to combat this attack on a point of extreme vulnerability which had been entirely

BRITISH, FRENCH CITY AND COUNTY APPEAL TO SPAIN RECOVER AFTER TO END CONFLICT EARLIEST STORM

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Great Britain and France, fearing mass slaughter if the Spanish nationalists enter Madrid, have appealed to the Madrid government to seek an agreement to safeguard the city's million-odd people.

Impelled to action by the nightmare vision of the streets of a great world capital running with blood, the government is understood to have ordered Foreign Minister Anthony Eden to get immediately in contact with Paris.

France's prompt response to the British appeal was due in part, it was understood, to receipt of secret reports from its own diplomatic and military intelligence services that 200,000 people have died in the civil war which started only 16 weeks ago today—more than died in action or of battle wounds on both sides in the four years of the American civil war.

Of these 200,000 men, women and children who have fallen under the fire of their countrymen, the French reports said that perhaps 50,000 died in actual battle. The other 150,000 it was asserted, were killed in cold blood, executed or died in prison.

Spain's monetary loss in the war was represented at a minimum of about $3,000,000,000. There is no estimate of the total damage, including historic buildings, priceless art treasures, businesses.

FIVE FOUND DEAD AFTER BLAZE IN CAMBRIDGE HOME

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 6.—(UP)—A mother and her two children and another woman and man were burned to death here today when fire destroyed their small frame home, apparently gaining headway while they slept.

The charred bodies were found in the ashes in such position that it was believed they had attempted to escape. Either the fire or the dense smoke trapped them.

The victims were Mrs. Myrtle Fife Wiley, 27; her children, Betty, 5, and Vernon, 1; Miss Mary Fife, 31, and George W. Sayre, 65.

The women and children's bodies were found by the front door. Mrs. Wiley clasped the baby in her arms.

Sayre's body was found in an adjoining room. Apparently he had tried to reach the others.

The fire was discovered by John King, a neighbor, at 5:40 a. m. as he was hanging up a washing in his back yard. He ran to the burning home and knocked out the window of a bedroom where the women and children slept.

Another neighbor joined King when he called for help but the searing flames drove them back. "The heat was too much for us," King said. "I guess the fire had a big start."

The fire department arrived too late to save the house. Investigators believed an open grate caused the fire. A cook stove in the kitchen was believed to have been cold when the fire started.

Mrs. Wiley was separated from her husband. He could not be located immediately.

F. D. OVERCOME

Capital Turns Out En Masse to Celebrate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(UP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt, overwhelmingly victorious in his bid for a second term, returned in triumph to the capital today.

Smiling and happy, he arrived from Hyde Park on his special train to be greeted by tens of thousands of cheering Washingtonians massed in Union station plaza.

The blase capital, which usually takes presidents to its stride, turned out in a spontaneous celebration to greet "Mr. Roosevelt back to the White House which will be his residence for four more years.

All Citizens Cheer

Wide streets leading from the station to the White House were packed with wildly waving citizens—government clerks, school children, housewives and laborers—whose bursts of cheers drowned out the blare of 11 brass bands at spaced intervals along the route of the President's car.

High government officials and District of Columbia authorities greeted the President when his train rolled to a stop.

The army band played "Hail to the Chief" as Mr. Roosevelt appeared at the door of the train, and wild cheers echoed through the lofty station auditorium from thousands of throats.

Police had difficulty clearing a way through the spectators massed in the train sheds as citizens of voteless Washington sought to push near the chief executive for whom they had no chance to cast ballots.

Roosevelt Happy

Mr. Roosevelt waved and smiled happily at the throng. He was visibly affected by the magnitude of the celebration which was formed on less than 24 hours notice to welcome his return to office for a second term.

The celebration was entirely non-partisan. Party lines were submerged and forgotten as Democrats and Republicans joined in the ceremonies.

BRITISH, FRENCH CITY AND COUNTY APPEAL TO SPAIN TO END CONFLICT RECOVER AFTER EARLIEST STORM

LONDON, Nov. 6—(UP)—Great Britain and France, fearing mass slaughter if the Spanish nationalists enter Madrid, have appealed to the Madrid government to seek an agreement to safeguard the city's million-odd people.

Impelled to action by the nightmare vision of the streets of a great world capital running with blood, the government is understood to have ordered Foreign Minister Anthony Eden to get immediately in contact with Paris.

France's prompt response to the British appeal was due in part, it was understood, to receipt of secret reports from its own diplomatic and military intelligence services that 200,000 people have died in the civil war which started only 16 weeks ago today—more men than died in action or of battle wounds on both sides in the four years of the American civil war.

Of these 200,000 men, women and children who have fallen under the fire of their countrymen, the French reports said that perhaps 50,000 died in actual battle. The other 150,000 it was asserted, were killed in cold blood, executed or died in prison.

Spain's monetary loss in the war was represented at a minimum of about $3,000,000,000. There is no estimate of the total damage, including historic buildings, priceless art treasures, businesses.

Old-Age Social Act to be Put Into Effect Jan. 1 Throughout Nation

26,000,000 ARE LISTED

Nearly All Workers Come Under Provisions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(UP)—The Social Security board announced plans today for placing in operation the old-age security program for 26,000,000 workers on Jan. 1.

Post office employees will begin immediately the distribution of identification cards and forms to employers and employees to entitle workers to annuities when they reach the age of 65.

The plan, object of bitter debate during the presidential campaign, calls for employers to deduct one per cent of the wages of all eligible workers beginning Jan. 1 to be paid into the treasury.

Employers Pay, Too

Employers will contribute a like amount to go into the general treasury account for use toward payment of annuities. These deductions will increase until the employee and the employer each is contributing three per cent of the workers' wages.

The board said no mental identification cards will be issued for

FIVE FOUND DEAD AFTER BLAZE IN CAMBRIDGE HOME

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 6—(UP)—A mother and her two children and another woman and man were burned to death here today when fire destroyed their small frame home, apparently gaining headway while they slept.

The charred bodies were found in the ashes in such position that it was believed they had attempted to escape. Either the fire or the dense smoke trapped them.

The victims were Mrs. Myrtle Fife Wiley, 27; her children, Betty, 5, and Vernon, 1; Miss Mary Fife, 31, and George W. Sayre, 65.

The women and children's bodies were found by the front door. Mrs. Wiley clasped the baby in her arms.

Sayre's body was found in an adjoining room. Apparently he had tried to reach the others.

The fire was discovered by John King, a neighbor, at 5:40 a. m., as he was hanging up a washing in his back yard. He ran to the burning home and knocked out the window of a bedroom where the women and children slept.

Another neighbor joined King when he called for help but the searing flames drove them back. "The heat was too much for us," King said. "I guess the fire had a big start."

The fire department arrived too late to save the house. Investigators believed an open grate caused the fire. A cook stove in the kitchen was believed to have been cold when the fire started.

Mrs. Wiley was separated from her husband. He could not be located immediately.

F. D. OVERCOME

Capital Turns Out En Masse to Celebrate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(UP)—President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, overwhelmed by the victory in his bid for a second term, returned in triumph to the capital today.

Smiling and happy, he arrived from Hyde Park on his special train to be greeted by tens of thousands of cheering Washingtonians massed in Union station plaza.

The blase capital, which usually takes presidents in its stride, turned out in a gignitic, spontaneous celebration to welcome Mr. Roosevelt back to the White House which will be his residence for four more years.

All Citizens Cheer

Wide streets leading from the station to the White House were packed with wildly waving citizens—government clerks, school children, housewives and laborers—whose bursts of cheers drowned out the blare of 11 brass bands at spaced intervals along the route of the President's car.

High government officials and District of Columbia authorities greeted the President when his train rolled to a stop.

The army band played "Hail to the Chief" as Mr. Roosevelt appeared at the door of the train, and wild cheers echoed through the lofty station auditorium from thousands of throats.

Police had difficulty clearing a way through the spectators massed in the train sheds as citizens of voteless Washington sought to push near the chief executive for whom they had no chance to cast ballots.

Roosevelt Happy

Mr. Roosevelt waved and smiled happily at the throng. He was visibly affected by the magnitude of the celebration which was formed on less than 24 hours notice to welcome his return to office for a second term.

The celebration was entirely non-partisan. Party lines were submerged and forgotten as Democrats and Republicans joined in the ceremonies.

The president rode to the center of the crowd in his automobile after

DARGUSCH LISTS REGULATIONS BECOMING EFFECTIVE AS FOOD TAX ENDS

FOODS DEFINED FOR CONSUMERS BY OHIO EXPERT

No Excise to Be Levied On Sale or Purchase For Home Use

TUESDAY IS LAST DAY

Restaurants to Continue Taking 3 Percent

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6 — Carlton S. Dargusch, vice-chairman of the State Tax Commission of the Ohio Retail Sales Tax after Tuesday, November 10.

The constitutional amendment approved Tuesday, provides that on and after Nov. 11, 1936, no excise tax shall be levied or collected on the sale or purchase of food for consumption off the premises where sold.

Through cooperation of the Ohio Retail Merchants Association and representatives of other retail concerns, the tax commission has prepared information for guidance of all vendors engaged in the retail selling of food. Definitions of "food," "premises," and interpretation of the new regulations are contained in the information.

Food, Consumption Defined. Food, as defined, includes "all articles used for the nourishment of human beings." Consumption, means "food thus defined is consumed when a human takes the same inwardly."

As a guide to vendors the tax commission has listed the following articles of food, the sale of which will be exempt from the sales tax after midnight, Tuesday, Nov. 10 if sold for consumption off the premises:

Meat, vegetables, bread, dairy products, fruits, coffee, sugar, tea, vinegar, spices, condiments, cereals, flavoring extracts.

Under the above classification the tax will not be levied on the sale of nuts, ice cream, cakes, rolls, pies and other pastries, coffee substitutes, salad dressings and similar articles, when the sale of such items is for consumption off the premises.

Restaurants, beer parlors, cafes, tearooms, lunch counters and similar places where food is served and consumed on the premises, will continue collecting the three per cent bracketed tax. Such places come within the "premises" as defined by the tax commission. "Premises" will include the entire building or any part of it which is under control of the vendor, or his agents, who sell food for human consumption. The definition also includes land adjacent to the building or any part of such land under control of the vendor, or his agents, which is used for the purpose of serving food to the public. It also includes parking lots and land containing tables at which food is served.

Others Not Food. Listed as articles which are not classified as food and which remain

DIET AND HEALTH

Is Daily Dozen Really Conductive to Health?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS APPARENTLY an ineradicable corollary of the human mind that strength and health must necessarily go together, just like bread and butter, V and 8, guy and doll, touch and go, and hit and run. The idea is by no means necessarily true.

I once irritated a friend of mine very strongly when he asked me whether sleeping on a sleeping porch was healthy, by countering with another question: "What do you mean by healthful?" He said everybody knew what you meant by healthful. But, as a matter of fact, it has several meanings.

Does it mean that it will make you live longer? Will it keep you from catching cold or other infectious diseases? Will it prevent you from getting blood poisoning if your finger is infected? Will it prevent you from getting pneumonia if you are chilled? Will it ward off chronic diseases?

So far as big muscles are concerned, the acquisition of them will do none of these things. Exercise makes you feel better. It eliminates certain toxins in the body more rapidly than under sedentary circumstances, and it allows you to do the same exercise the next day and the day after with a little more ease and precision. But that is about all.

Trained Strong Men. Mr. Alan Calvert of Philadelphia, so we are told in S. Arthur Devan's little book, "Exercise Without Exercises," was for many years a trainer of strong men. He personally laid out at least 40,000 courses in heavyweight exercises, but some years ago he came to the conclusion that the whole business of training for strength through the use of apparatus and special exercises was all wrong. He concluded that the development of muscles by these methods, although frequently successful, did not build up a corresponding physical vitality. Too many of the big-muscle boys of his experience dropped off suddenly into the Great Beyond from heart failure and other things. Certainly everybody will agree with him that the muscular strength acquired in this way depended almost entirely on keeping up the exercising.

Another experience of his, which I think we can all confirm, is the phenomenon of the "natural strong man." Every once in a while he came across someone who was prodigiously strong in spite of never having taken any voluntary exercise in his life. When the natural strong man is dragged into a gymnasium he can outdo in sheer physical strength all the prodigies of the chest-weights and the bar-bell.

Two men, one a natural strong man, and the other a product of a gymnasium, start off on a vacation, stay at all kinds of hotels, eat all kinds of food, keep all kinds of hours, go to museums and art galleries, never once visit a gymnasium or take part in any kind of athletic game. When they return, the gymnasium strong man is all out of condition and hurries right back to his exercises to get fit again. The natural strong man goes his regular way, and is just as fresh and vigorous as when he started.

subject to the sales tax are: candies, medicines, including tonics, laxatives, patent medicines, drugs and drug compounds, spirituous liquors and beverages other than milk, tea, coffee and coffee substitutes.

Dog food remains taxable as does feed for horses, cattle and other livestock when not sold to farmers for the purpose of raising farm produce for sale; smoking and chewing tobacco; together with stogies and cigars; bird seed, cough drops, chicken feed, fly preparations, ginger ale, chewing gum, canning supplies, oyster shells, fruit drink powders, cat feed, bird gravel, notions, toilet articles, household supplies, cleaning and laundry supplies and other similar articles.

The following articles commonly sold in drug stores are listed as not taxable under the new regulations when consumed off the premises: baby foods, cakes, cookies and crackers; cocoa and substitutes; coffee, tea and coffee substitutes; condiments, dairy products, including canned milk; flavoring extracts and food colorings; fruits and vegetable juices, ice cream powders, jams, jellies and preserves, nuts, invalid foods, sandwiches, vitamin foods, bouillon cubes, vegetable shortening and substitutes, peanut and fruit butters; table salt, syrups, when not used with spirituous liquors, diabetic flour and desserts.

Information concerning records to be maintained by vendors will be given at a later date.

SEVERE WINTER CERTAIN, VOWS INDIAN PROPHET

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UP) — Charley Big Knife came out of the north country for his winter supplies today and warned: "Ketch um big snow and plenty cold before next moon." Charley has been the Chippewa weather prophet of the Huron Mountain country for the last 40 years and says he has never missed. His almanac is nature and his patron Gitchei Manitou, the Great Spirit.

Like the beaver, the mink, the frog, the bear, the muskrat and the wild goose, Charley prepared for a winter he said would be equal to that of 1917-18.

He bought extra blankets, cornmeal, sugar, bacon, a hot water bottle for his squaw, and a blow torch to thaw out his traps. Then he, his squaw and their two children leaned into a driving snow and sleet storm and headed back for their Big Bay camp.

Therefore, Jeanette MacDonald is that lucky star, for in her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "San Francisco," opening Sunday at the Circle Theatre, she enjoys the friendship of three admirers. They are: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, and Jack Holt.

Glenn Warren was ill at his home on Monday and unable to assume his duties as instrumental instructor in the local school.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Put them all together, add a Bubble Dancer, and you have Jimmie Hodges, in person, and his great Revues-Gal Show, "Laff-Town-Laff."

This great stage show, a fascinating fantasy in flesh, will come to the Cliftona theatre Sunday. Headed by Jimmie Hodges, known from coast to coast as the South's favorite singing comedian, his Society Synopators, a flashy swing band with the irresistible Don Gray at the piano, and the lovely Twelve Iris Girls, this new show has already set records in scores of theatres.

"The Twelve Iris Girls"—just an even dozen of darlings, comprise far more than an ordinary chorus group. Instead of being 12 chorus girls, they are 12 artists—each has a claim to stage glory, and is proud of it. This group is typical of the type of girl parade that has established Jimmie Hodges as an outstanding producer of something different, and has made him supreme in this type of show from one end of the country to the other.

"Laff-Town-Laff" will open Sunday at the Cliftona theatre.

SEVERE WINTER CERTAIN, VOWS INDIAN PROPHET

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UP) — Charley Big Knife came out of the north country for his winter supplies today and warned: "Ketch um big snow and plenty cold before next moon." Charley has been the Chippewa weather prophet of the Huron Mountain country for the last 40 years and says he has never missed. His almanac is nature and his patron Gitchei Manitou, the Great Spirit.

Like the beaver, the mink, the frog, the bear, the muskrat and the wild goose, Charley prepared for a winter he said would be equal to that of 1917-18.

He bought extra blankets, cornmeal, sugar, bacon, a hot water bottle for his squaw, and a blow torch to thaw out his traps. Then he, his squaw and their two children leaned into a driving snow and sleet storm and headed back for their Big Bay camp.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Put them all together, add a Bubble Dancer, and you have Jimmie Hodges, in person, and his great Revues-Gal Show, "Laff-Town-Laff."

This great stage show, a fascinating fantasy in flesh, will come to the Cliftona theatre Sunday. Headed by Jimmie Hodges, known from coast to coast as the South's favorite singing comedian, his Society Syncopators, a flashy swing band with the irresistible Don Gray at the piano, and the lovely Twelve Iris Girls, this new show has already set records in scores of theatres.

"The Twelve Iris Girls,"—just an even dozens of darlings, comprise far more than an ordinary chorus group. Instead of being 12 chorus girls, they are 12 artists—each has a claim to stage glory, and is proud of it. This group is typical of the type of girl parade that has established Jimmie Hodges as an outstanding producer of something different, and has made him supreme in this type of show from one end of the country to the other.

"Laff-Town-Laff" will open Sunday at the Cliftona theatre.

AT THE GRAND

Jack Holt has the leading role in "Crash Donovan", the feature picture at the Grand theatre Friday and Saturday.

AT THE CIRCLE

Lucky is the star who has more than two men to shower their attentions on her—the hero and the villain.

Therefore, Jeanette MacDonald is that lucky star, for in her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "San Francisco," opening Sunday at the Circle Theatre, she enjoys the friendship of three admirers. They are: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, and Jack Holt.

"San Francisco" is Anita Loos'

President Calls Meeting To Discuss Crisis on West Coast

HULL MAY BE DELAYED

Union, Employers Willing to Hear Executive

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Intervention of the federal government in the maritime strike threatening to strangle American foreign commerce, appeared probable today. President Roosevelt presides at a cabinet meeting where the pressing situation, daily growing more serious, was expected to be discussed.

At San Francisco where began the Pacific Coast strike that has now spread to Atlantic and Gulf ports, Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, ace labor mediator, purchased airplane reservations for a hasty trip to Washington. For weeks he had negotiated unsuccessfully for peace and it is reported that he planned to lay all details before the president.

The cabinet was expected to receive reports on conciliation efforts from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, and Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson. Miss Perkins has been directing the negotiations.

Intervention Welcome

Federal intervention was regarded as probable unless arbitration efforts succeed soon or the strike continues to spread. Mr. Roosevelt so far has declined to use his office to settle the strike, though both union forces and employers have intimated that his intervention would be welcomed.

Ship owners and shippers have exerted pressure for federal intervention. Roper estimated the strike is costing the nation more than $500,000 a day. Commerce has been paralyzed in many ports and shortages of some foods are threatened in affected cities and in Hawaii and Alaska.

There has been some discussion of the possibility that naval reserve crews might be placed aboard the ships to guard against fires and protect perishable goods, but such action was regarded as unlikely.

The ship tieup may prove embarrassing to Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the delegation scheduled to sail with him aboard the American Legion from New York Saturday for the Pan-American peace conference starting Dec. 1 in Buenos Aires. The ship is now held in port by the strike.

President Roosevelt's new maritime commission admittedly has made little headway toward settlement of the dispute. The commission, however, is keeping in touch with the situation but is powerless to act on its own initiative.

CAPITAL READY TO INTERVENE IN SHIP STRIKE

President Calls Meeting To Discuss Crisis on West Coast

HULL MAY BE DELAYED

Union, Employers Willing to Hear Executive

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 — (UP) — Intervention of the federal government in the maritime strike threatening to strangle American foreign commerce, appeared probable today. President Roosevelt presides at a cabinet meeting where the pressing situation, daily growing more serious, was expected to be discussed.

At San Francisco where began the Pacific Coast strike that has now spread to Atlantic and Gulf ports, Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, ace labor mediator, purchased airplane reservations for a hasty trip to Washington. For weeks he had negotiated unsuccessfully for peace and it is reported that he planned to lay all details before the president.

The cabinet was expected to receive reports on conciliation efforts from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, and Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson. Miss Perkins has been directing the negotiations.

Intervention Welcome
Federal intervention was regarded as probable unless arbitration efforts succeed soon or the strike continues to spread. Mr. Roosevelt so far has declined to use his office to settle the strike, though both union forces and employers have intimated that his intervention would be welcomed.

Ship owners and shippers have exerted pressure for federal intervention. Roper estimated the strike is costing the nation more than $500,000 a day. Commerce has been paralyzed in many ports and shortages of some foods are threatened in affected cities and in Hawaii and Alaska.

There has been some discussion of the possibility that naval reserve crews might be placed aboard the ships to guard against fires and protect perishable goods, but such action was regarded as unlikely.

The ship tieup may prove embarrassing to Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the delegation scheduled to sail with him aboard the American Legion from New York Saturday for the Pan-American peace conference starting Dec. 1 in Buenos Aires. The ship is now held in port by the strike.

President Roosevelt's new maritime commission admittedly has made little headway toward settlement of the dispute. The commission, however, is keeping in touch with the situation but is powerless to act on its own initiative.

TO PICKAWAY COUNTIANS

FOLK: Your ballots in Tuesday's election proved that you are pleased with the administrations now serving you, both state and national. Pickaway was one of Ohio's many counties that helped boost the president and governor to victory, and it should feel proud to have had the opportunity to do so. Congratulations are due the recently-reorganized Democratic executive and central committees for the splendid work they did. They provided several outstanding meetings to acquaint their party followers with the issues at stake, and they had Pickaway county better organized than at any time in recent years. Lawrence Goeller, head of the executive board, Clarence Helvering, chairman of the central group, Ernie Weiler, leader of the Democratic club, and Mary G. Morris, leader of the women's branch, all served efficiently. There had to be a losing side, too, and it can be said the county Republican organization did a good job in the face of the great popularity of President Roosevelt. Its leaders, Tom Renick and John Walters, took the defeat like good politicians should, and they have already promised their political opponents they will be back for another fight when the next election year arrives.

TO EX-SOLDIERS

VETERANS: It is the duty of every one of you to participate in next Wednesday's Armistice Day parade and celebration, sponsored by Howard Hall post, American Legion. Whether you are a Legionnaire, member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, or a Spanish-American War veteran, you should be in the parade. The Armistice closing the World War, is recognized as one of the greatest historical acts on record and its anniversary should be properly observed. It is the duty of not only veterans' organizations, but of service, fraternal and patriotic groups to help make the celebration a success.

TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Some action should be taken to reduce the number of traffic accidents on Route 22 between Williamsport and New Holland. Residents along the highway are beginning to consider an overturned car a common occurrence. This is especially true of Hugh Dennis and his family who live on the T. C. Gooley farm near New Holland. Due to the slippery highway and the bend in front of their home approximately 20 cars have left the road there during recent weeks. On Thursday, Oct. 22, and on Nov. 3, five cars were taken from surrounding fields and ditches. Four cars have left the road at the curve near the home of Mrs. Florence Campbell during the last ten days. Sylvester Bookwalter of Clarksburg is recovering from painful injuries suffered when his car overturned there last Saturday evening. On Sunday, Oct. 25, there were two accidents just west of Williamsport. The majority of the cars leaving the highway bore out-of-state tags indicating Pickaway county drivers are familiar with the dangers. Fortunately the majority of the accidents have not been serious. Garage men have been deriving considerable profit from these accidents but the farmers of the community are suffering heavy losses to their fences. Signs warning motorists of the dangers on this road should be erected as once before Pickaway county's death toll from accidents is raised. So far 19 have been killed, two more than during the entire year of 1935.

TO SHERIFF RADCLIFF

OFFICER: Pickaway county proved to you Tuesday that it values a law enforcement official who will provide it fearless, faithful and efficient service. Your victory at the polls is another boost for good government. Had anyone suggested in years gone by that a sheriff could be elected to serve four consecutive terms in Pickaway county he would have been jeered, but you have been named for your fourth term by a bigger vote than you ever received before. The fact that you were given more votes than President Roosevelt is evidence in itself that your constituents hold you in high esteem.

TO VOTERS

FRIENDS: Circleville residents clearly demonstrated their progressive spirit last Tuesday when they passed the $75,000 bond issue for the construction of a sewage disposal plant by a vote of about 5 to 1. Construction of a plant will relieve the city of the danger of damage suits for pollution of the Scioto river and place Circleville on a standard with other central Ohio cities. An efficiently operated and attractively maintained plant will be an asset to the community. I hope councilmen use good judgment in the selection of the proper type of plant for Circleville and complete their plans as soon as possible so they may be sent to the proper officials for government aid.

TO MARIE HAMILTON

DEAR MADAM: Congratulations for your election to the highest position in the Eastern Star of Ohio, that of Worthy Grand Matron. To attain this position required years of efficient work in the order. I hope your year as head of the state organization is most successful. Circleville residents are proud to have its citizens attain such high positions.

TO WEATHERMAN

DR. CLARKE: I suggest you temper us for the winter weather a little more gradually. That snow storm the other day caught us off guard and made things miserable in general. The utilities suffered heavy losses and many of Circleville's beautiful trees were broken under the tremendous weight of the snow. We have no desire to continue breaking weather records for either rain, snow or temperatures. Take it easy.

World At A Glance

By Charles P. Stewart

From politicians, already beginning to drift back into Washington, with the presidential fight ended, one hears the quite frequent complaint that national campaigns are too long.

Just how they could be shortened, however, is not apparent.

Conventions, of course, could be held much closer to election day. Party managers choose their dates. They could choose late September and early October as readily as they do regularly choose late June and early July. No constitutional amendment would be required to effect the change.

Thus the campaign's length could be trimmed from 17 or 18 weeks to six or seven.

NO RELIEF

That is to say, such a curtailment would be a theoretical possibility.

But in actual practice, wouldn't the pre-convention jockeying for nominations be about as wearisome, for months in advance, as the campaigns proper are now?

Critics of the present system argue that a prolonged campaign keeps the country perturbed and business in a state of uncertainty for an unnecessary number of months. To be sure, business does not appear to have been adversely influenced by the 1936 campaign, but in general the rule has held good; campaign years have been notoriously poor business years.

Yet would business feel any more secure if, instead of having two known candidates opposing one another for election, it had half a dozen candidates per party to reckon with as nomination possibilities?

A HABIT—HARD TO CHANGE

True as to this year, there was no uncertainty concerning the Democratic nomination, but there was a plenty of it concerning the Republicans.

Would the situation have been clarified if G. O. P. uncertainty had been three months prolonged? I can't see that it would. The contrary.

I do realize that campaign oratory gets pretty tired of a four-month task and would like to shave it down by 75 per cent. And I think the public gets pretty tired of it, too.

But it is a habit. I don't believe it can be broken.

A SIX-YEAR TERM?

More to the point, I hear the suggestion made that the United States should adopt the system of a six-year presidential term, with the president ineligible to re-election.

The notion obviously is that a president, once elected, is influenced in all his first term's policies, by thoughts of re-election, and never is independent and disinterested until (and if) his second term.

Four years is not enough, the argument is; he should have six. It is an arbitrary figure, but it will do.

DOES IT WORK?

I have lived in a country in which that rule prevails—the Argentine Republic.

But there is this joker in it: The president is ineligible to re-election upon the expiration of his term, but he is not ineligible to re-election upon the expiration of his successor's term.

Accordingly, what he does with his term, with a view to his successor's term, with a view to his own subsequent re-election—Oh, my!

It worked in the case of the late President Irigoyen of Argentina—and the republic has been having revolutions ever since.

Between theory and practice there is a great gulf.

FLOWERS AT HER FEET

By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 40

YOUR HEART does not stop beating. Even if there is ice in your veins, you can walk and move. You can walk slowly into a room and sit down and compose yourself. You may want to run out of a house and into the night, screaming for assurance that what you've heard is not true.

But you don't do it because people would say, "Why?" and "Whatever is the matter?" and "Poor Bill, he's gotten himself into something with this strange girl."

And you can't hurt Bill. Even though you are stretched and torn and suffering on the side of a mountain beside a cracked up plane. Oh, no, not now! By now they have gotten to him. He's comfortable now. Perhaps he doesn't feel. They've given him a merciful opiate. They always do, don't they? Please make them! Don't let him suffer.

"Yes, isn't it dreadful?" you hear yourself say.

And that face that you know as Bill, which floats toward you and away from you, says, "Sayre? Say, Alix, isn't that the man who is president of the ad company you used to work for?"

And you say, "Yes," and that's all you can say. You get upon your feet and murmur, "Excuse me," as though you were going upstairs for your purse.

You even walk upstairs slowly as though you were going for your purse.

You go into Gretchen's big bedroom that serves as the ladies' dressing room for tonight and you are alone.

Alone with the thing you have heard. Alone with the tortured visions that tear you apart.

For an instant Alix stood there staring at a white-faced girl. She didn't know her for a minute because the patches of rouge stood out like two bruises on her cheek. She didn't know herself twisting with the pain that was gathering itself into a terrible sob.

Then it came and Alix sank to the floor, her arms outstretched on the bench of the dressing table. The sobs came up and crowded between her teeth, choking her breath while her heart tried to escape her in an incessant cry:

"John! Oh, dearest! Help him! John!"

For how long she was there calling his name she didn't know. Somewhere in back of her she heard a door close quietly. She felt strong arms lifting her up.

She pushed a girl in a white dress aside and went into the bathroom where she held cold, wet cloths to her eyes until she had composed herself. Then she went back to the bedroom to face Dorcas Hill.

Dorcas was brushing her hair. "Thanks," Alix said with a voice that was still trembling.

"Forget it," Dorcas said. "Shall I ask Bill to take you home? Everybody knows you are pretty well exhausted."

"Thanks again," Alix said. "Tell them I'm having a nervous breakdown. I guess I am."

Dorcas didn't say anything. She went downstairs to find Bill. Bill took Alix home. It was a strange, silent journey for an engaged couple.

"Dorcas gave me something for you," Bill said when he was leaving Alix at the door of her home. "She said you'd need a good night's sleep."

He put a small envelope into her hand. She read the name of the bromide.

She took the bromide, but she didn't sleep until long after dawn. It seemed that she had just fallen off into her horrible dreams when she heard a knock at her bedroom door.

It was morning. "Come in," she said. Dorcas Hill opened the door, came in, and closed it at her back. "Hello, Alix," she greeted her gravely and with some of her father's professional air. "How are you this morning?"

Alix tried a small smile. "I'm all right this morning," she said. "You look it," the other girl said, and Alix looked across her bed to the mirror. She saw a girl with a blanched face, with deeply circled eyes, still red with weeping. She saw blue veins in her trembling hands.

Dorcas took a bottle of spirits of ammonia from her bag, emptied a little in a water glass, added some water and gave it to Alix. "Drink it, my dear. I want to talk to you."

Alix drank it, felt better, and waited. "Why don't you tell me about it? You can trust me," Dorcas said.

"Tell you about what?" Alix parried.

"We're both intelligent women, Alix. You know what I mean. Please believe I haven't come here to be unkind. I've come here to save all of us if I can. Last night when I followed you upstairs, I didn't do it to pry on your privacy, to spy on you. You were so white when you left the room. I was afraid you were ill. Then I saw you, heard you call, 'John!' You see, I've been in love and I know what that cry means. Why don't you tell me about it?"

His name—his dear, beloved name—broke Alix.

Gentle tears rolled down her cheeks. "Dorcas, I'll have to tell you or else I'll break inside. I loved John once."

"You love him now," Dorcas said quietly.

"Yes, I always will. Once I thought he loved me, but another woman told me that he didn't. . . so I had to put him out of my life. That was right, wasn't it?"

"No."

"But it was!" Alix persisted. "When a man loves another woman, you can't do anything about it."

"Yes you can, if once you thought he loved you."

"One thinks of her pride," Alix said haughtily.

"Oh, no you don't!" Dorcas retorted.

"What do you do?"

"I'll tell you what girls like you do. Perhaps you don't mean to be selfish, but you think of no one but yourself. Trying to escape from yourself, you still think of no one but yourself. You take and take!"

"I? But I have nothing!"

"You have brains and you have beauty. You have all the things a woman needs to rebuild her life. You have youth and time to wait. Men are crazy about you. Problem?"

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Muriel Yeoman was elected worthy matron of Purity Chapter, No. 65, Order of Eastern Star, at the annual election in New Holland.

George McDowell, superintendent of the Jackson township school, was elected president of the Pickaway County Public Health League. Rev. C. H. Eichinger is vice president, and William Ulm, treasurer.

Col. Harry D. Jackson, city, and Col. E. S. Thacher, Jackson township, were named delegates to the National Guard convention at New Orleans at the convention of Ohio guardsmen held in Columbus.

10 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Fred Tigner, Wayne township, who underwent an operation in a Columbus hospital two weeks ago, returned to her home.

Aaron Willard Griffey, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Griffey, S. Scioto street, was instantly killed when struck by an auto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mast motored to Portsmouth and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lathouse.

ably all the men you've known. You have chances to meet other men if you haven't the spunk to go after the man you love."

Alix lay back on her pillows with widening eyes.

"I don't know what you mean," she said in a little voice.

"Yes you do, Alix Carey. Instead of . . . oh, let me ask you a question: Did you believe that your John loved you?"

"Yes." It was only a whisper. "But you thought he loved another woman. Did you think that other woman was the one who would make him happy, or did you think that your love was so great—so enduring for him—that it was right for him? Did you think that all the beauty of your love would give him beauty all his life? Were you willing to sacrifice everything for him if he need be?"

"Oh, yes!" Alix said it with certainty.

"Then why did you run away? You were so little that your love couldn't stand up to your pride. You were afraid to take your chance."

Alix said nothing for a little while. Then:

"Why did you come here, Dorcas?"

"To do what you were afraid to do. I've come to fight you for Bill Boyd's happiness. If you marry him, he'll make you happy. You belong to the idealistic side of Bill, but what have you got to give him?"

"I'd try."

"You'd try? Alix, I love him with that kind of beauty, that sacrifice that you felt for another man! I know I'd make him happy. I know the things Bill needs. He knew it once too. All night long I've been over this thing I've pocketed my pride because I've found my man and I'm not going to lose him because it's for his happiness!"

"Dorcas, I didn't know. What do you want me to do?"

"I want you to leave Bairdsdale tonight. Leave a note for Bill, telling him that you didn't love him. Tell him—your love for him was what his love for you was and what real love is. I'll see that Bairdsdale will never think unkindly of you. Then I want you to go to New York. You can't force fate, Alix. Things work out and this is going to work out. Rest now and pack this afternoon. I'll drive you to the next town. Will you or will I force you?"

Poems That Live
SHE IS FAR FROM THE LAND

She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps,
And lovers are round her, sighing:

But coldy she turns from their gaze, and weeps,
For her heart in his grave is lying.

She sings the wild songs of her dear native plains,
Every note which he loved a

awaking—
Ah! little they think, who delight in her strains,
How the heart of the minstrel is breaking.

He has lived for his love, for his country he dies,
They were all that to life had entwined him;

Nor soon shall the tears of his country be dried,
Nor long will his love stay behind him.

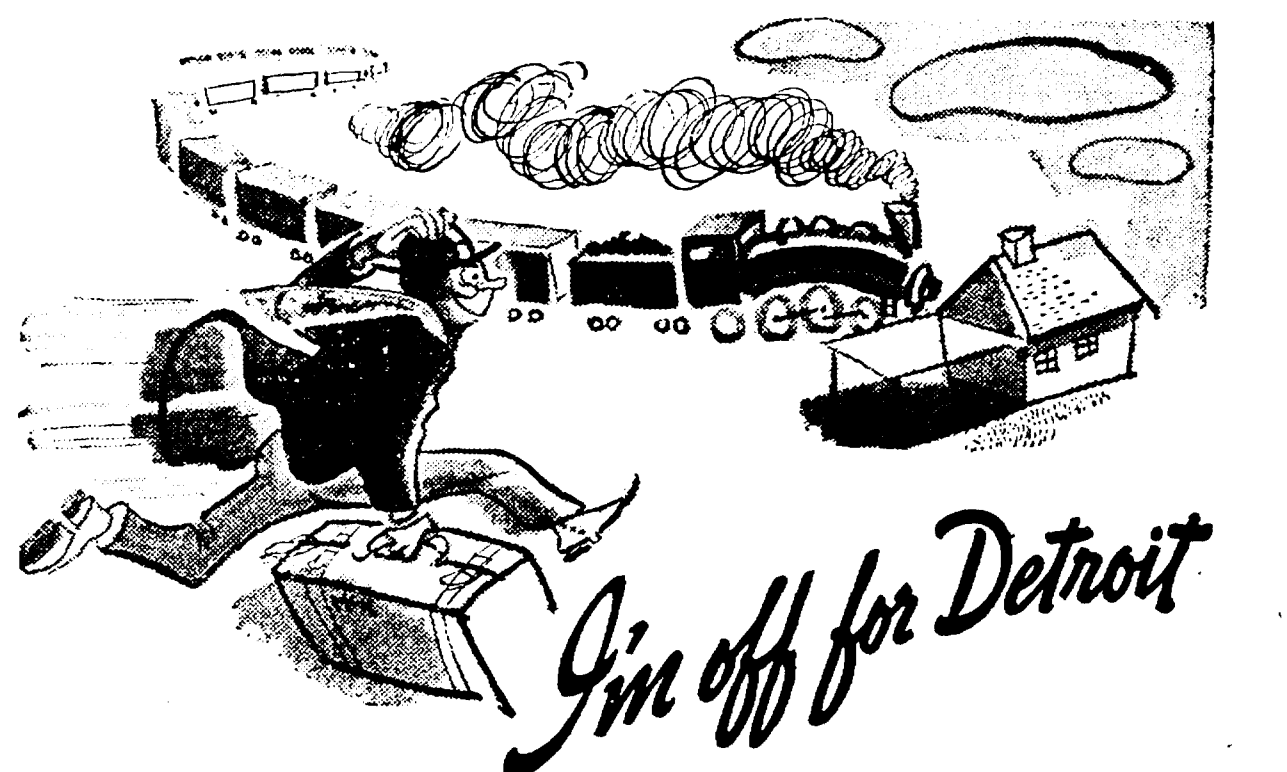

Oh! make her a grave where the sunbeams rest,
When they promise a glorious

They'll shine o'er her sleep, like a smile from the west,
From her own loved island of sorrow.

OPEN LETTERS

TO PICKAWAY COUNTIANS

FOLK: Your ballots in Tuesday's election proved that you are pleased with the administrations now serving you, both state and national. Pickaway was one of Ohio's many counties that helped boost the president and governor to victory, and it should feel proud to have had the opportunity to do so. Congratulations are due the recently-reorganized Democratic executive and central committees for the splendid work they did. They provided several outstanding meetings to acquaint their party followers with the issues at stake, and they had Pickaway county better organized than at any time in recent years. Lawrence Goeller, head of the executive board, Clarence Helvering, chairman of the central group, Ernie Weiler, leader of the Democratic club, and Mary G. Morris, leader of the women's branch, all served efficiently. There had to be a losing side, too, and it can be said the county Republican organization did a good job in the face of the great popularity of President Roosevelt. Its leaders, Tom Renick and John Walters, took the defeat like good politicians should, and they have already promised their political opponents they will be back for another fight when the next election year arrives.

TO EX-SOLDIERS

VETERANS: It is the duty of every one of you to participate in next Wednesday's Armistice Day parade and celebration, sponsored by Howard Hall post, American Legion. Whether you are a Legionnaire, member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, or a Spanish-American War veteran, you should be in the parade. The Armistice closing the World War, is recognized as one of the greatest historical acts on record and its anniversary should be properly observed. It is the duty of not only veterans' organizations, but of service, fraternal and patriotic groups to help make the celebration a success.

TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Some action should be taken to reduce the number of traffic accidents on Route 22 between Williamsport and New Holland. Residents along the highway are beginning to consider an overturned car a common occurrence. This is especially true of Hugh Dennis and his family who live on the T. C. Gooley farm near New Holland. Due to the slippery highway and the bend in front of their home approximately 20 cars have left the road there during recent weeks. On Thursday, Oct. 22, and on Nov. 3, five cars were taken from surrounding fields and ditches. Four cars have left the road at the curve near the home of Mrs. Florence Campbell during the last ten days. Sylvester Bookwalter of Clarksburg is recovering from painful injuries suffered when his car overturned there last Saturday evening. On Sunday, Oct. 25, there were two accidents just west of Williamsport. The majority of the cars leaving the highway bore out-of-state tags indicating Pickaway county drivers are familiar with the dangers. Fortunately the majority of the accidents have not been serious. Garage men have been deriving considerable profit from these accidents but the farmers of the community are suffering heavy losses to their fences. Signs warning motorists of the dangers on this road should be erected as once before Pickaway county's death toll from accidents is raised. So far 19 have been killed, two more than during the entire year of 1935.

TO SHERIFF RADCLIFF

OFFICER: Pickaway county proved to you Tuesday that it values a law enforcement official who will provide it fearless, faithful and efficient service. Your victory at the polls is another boost for good government. Had anyone suggested in years gone by that a sheriff could be elected to serve four consecutive terms in Pickaway county he would have been jeered, but you have been named for your fourth term by a bigger vote than you ever received before. The fact that you were given more votes than President Roosevelt is evidence in itself that your constituents hold you in high esteem.

TO VOTERS

FRIENDS: Circleville residents clearly demonstrated their progressive spirit last Tuesday when they passed the $75,000 bond issue for the construction of a sewage disposal plant by a vote of about 5 to 1. Construction of a plant will relieve the city of the danger of damage suits for pollution of the Scioto river and place Circleville on a standard with other central Ohio cities. An efficiently operated and attractively maintained plant will be an asset to the community. I hope councilmen use good judgment in the selection of the proper type of plant for Circleville and complete their plans as soon as possible so they may be sent to the proper officials for government aid.

TO MARIE HAMILTON

DEAR MADAM: Congratulations for your election to the highest position in the Eastern Star of Ohio, that of Worthy Grand Matron. To attain this position required years of efficient work in the order. I hope your year as head of the state organization is most successful. Circleville residents are proud to have its citizens attain such high positions.

TO WEATHERMAN

DR. CLARKE: I suggest you temper us for the winter weather a little more gradually. That snow storm the other day caught us off guard and made thing miserable in general. The utilities suffered heavy losses and many of Circleville's beautiful trees were broken under the tremendous weight of the snow. We have no desire to continue breaking weather records for either rain, snow or temperatures. Take it easy.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

From politicians, already beginning to drift back into Washington, with the presidential fight ended, one hears the quite frequent complaint that national campaigns are too long.

Just how they could be shortened, however, is not apparent.

Conventions, of course, could be held much closer to election day. Party managers choose their dates. They could choose late September and early October as readily as they do regularly choose late June and early July. No constitutional amendment would be required to effect the change.

Thus the campaign's length could be trimmed from 17 or 18 weeks to six or seven.

NO RELIEF

That is to say, such a curtailment would be a theoretical possibility.

But in actual practice, wouldn't the pre-convention jockeying for nominations be about as wearisome, for months in advance, as the campaigns proper are now?

Critics of the present system argue that a prolonged campaign keeps the country perturbed and business in a state of uncertainty for an unnecessary number of months. To be sure, business does not appear to have been adversely influenced by the 1936 campaign, but in general the rule has held good; campaign years have been notoriously poor business years.

Yet would business feel any more secure if, instead of having two known candidates opposing one another for election, it had half a dozen candidates per party to reckon with as nomination possibilities?

A HABIT—HARD TO CHANGE

True as to this year, there was no uncertainty concerning the Democratic nomination, but there was a plenty of it concerning the Republicans.

Would the situation have been clarified if G. O. P. uncertainty had been three months prolonged? I can't see that it would. The contrary.

I do realize that campaign oratory gets pretty tired of a four-month task and would like to shave it down by 75 per cent. And I think the public gets pretty tired of it, too.

But it is a habit. I don't believe it can be broken.

A SIX-YEAR TERM?

More to the point, I hear the suggestion made that the United States should adopt the system of a six-year presidential term, with the president ineligible to re-election.

The notion obviously is that a president, once elected, is influenced in all his first term's policies, by thoughts of re-election, and never is independent and disinterested until (and if) his second term.

Four years is not enough, the argument is; he should have six. It is an arbitrary figure, but it will do.

DOES IT WORK?

I have lived in a country in which that rule prevails — the Argentine Republic.

But there is this joker in it: The president is ineligible to re-election upon the expiration of his term, but he is not ineligible to re-election upon the expiration of his successor's term.

Accordingly, what he does with his term, with a view to his successor's term, with a view to his own subsequent re-election — Oh, my!

It worked in the case of the late President Irigoyen of Argentina — and the Republic has been having revolutions ever since.

Between theory and practice there is a great gulf.

CHAPTER 40

YOUR HEART does not stop beating. Even if there is ice in your veins, you can walk and move. You can walk slowly into a room and sit down and compose yourself. You may want to run out of a house and into the night, screaming for assurance that what you've heard is not true.

But you don't do it because people would say, "Why?" and "Whatever is the matter?" and "Poor Bill, he's gotten himself into something with this strange girl."

And you can't hurt Bill.

Even though you are stretched and torn and suffering on the side of a mountain beside a cracked up plane. Oh, no, not now! By now they have gotten to him. He's comfortable now. Perhaps he doesn't feel. They've given him a merciful opiate. They always do, don't they? Please make them! Don't let him suffer.

"Yes, isn't it dreadful?" you hear yourself say.

And that face that you know as Bill, which floats toward you and away from you, says, "Sayre? Say, Alix, isn't that the man who is president of the ad company you used to work for?"

And you say, "Yes," and that's all you can say. You get upon your feet and murmur, "Excuse me," as though you were going upstairs for your purse.

You even walk upstairs slowly as though you were going for your purse.

You go into Gretchen's big bedroom that serves as the ladies' dressing room for tonight and you are alone.

Alone with the thing you have heard. Alone with the tortured visions that tear you apart.

For an instant Alix stood there staring at a white-faced girl. She didn't know her for a minute because the patches of rouge stood out like two bruises on her cheek. She didn't know herself twisting with the pain that was gathering itself into a terrible sob.

Then it came and Alix sank to the floor, her arms outstretched on the bench of the dressing table. The sobs came up and crowded between her teeth, choking her breath while her heart tried to escape her in an incessant cry:

"John! Oh, dearest! Help him! John!"

For how long she was there calling his name she didn't know. Somewhere in back of her she heard a door close quietly. She felt strong arms lifting her up.

She pushed a girl in a white dress aside and went into the bathroom where she held cold, wet cloths to her eyes until she had composed herself. Then she went back to the bedroom to face Dorcas Hill.

Dorcas was brushing her hair.

"Thanks," Alix said with a voice that was still trembling. "Forget it," Dorcas said. "Shall I ask Bill to take you home? Everybody knows you are pretty well exhausted."

"Thanks again," Alix said. "Tell them I'm having a nervous breakdown. I guess I am."

Dorcas didn't say anything. She went downstairs to find Bill. Bill took Alix home. It was a strange, silent journey for an engaged couple.

"Dorcas gave me something for you," Bill said when he was leaving Alix at the door of her home. "She said you'd need a good night's sleep."

He put a small envelope into her hand. She read the name of the bromide.

She took the bromide, but she didn't sleep until long after dawn. It seemed that she had just fallen off into her horrible dreams when she heard a knock at her bedroom door.

It was morning.

"Come in," she said.

Dorcas Hill opened the door, came in, and closed it at her back. "Hello, Alix," she greeted her gravely and with some of her father's professional air. "How are you this morning?"

Alix tried a small smile. "I'm all right this morning," she said. "You look it," the other girl said, and Alix looked across her bed to the mirror. She saw a girl with a blanched face, with deeply circled eyes, still red with weeping. She saw blue veins in her trembling hands.

Dorcas took a bottle of spirits of ammonia from her bag, emptied a little in a water glass, added some water, and gave it to Alix. "Drink it, my dear. I want to talk to you."

"Alix drank it, felt better, and waited."

"Why don't you tell me about it? You can trust me," Dorcas said.

"Tell you about what?" Alix parried.

"We're both intelligent women, Alix. You know what I mean. Please believe I haven't come here to be unkind. I've come here to save all of us if I can. Last night when I followed you upstairs, I didn't do it to pry on your privacy, to spy on you. You were so white when you left the room, I was afraid you were ill. Then I saw you, heard you call, 'John!' You see, I've been in love and I know what that cry means. Why don't you tell me about it?"

His name—his dear, beloved name—broke Alix.

Gentle tears rolled down her cheeks.

"Dorcas, I'll have to tell you or else I'll break inside. I loved John once."

"You love him now," Dorcas said quietly.

"Yes. I always will. Once I thought he loved me, but another woman told me that he didn't so . . . so I had to put him out of my life. That was right, wasn't it?"

"No."

"But it was!" Alix persisted.

"When a man loves another woman you can't do anything about it."

"Yes you can, if once you thought he loved you."

"One thinks of her pride," Alix said haughtily.

"Oh, no you don't!" Dorcas retorted.

"What do you do?"

"I'll tell you what girls like you do. Perhaps you don't mean to be selfish, but you think of no one but yourself. Trying to escape from yourself, you still think of no one but yourself. You take and take!"

"I? But I have nothing!"

"You have brains and you have beauty. You have all the things a woman needs to rebuild her life. You have youth and time to wait. Men are crazy about you. Probably all the men you've known. You have chances to meet other men if you haven't the spunk to go after the man you love."

Alix lay back on her pillows with widening eyes.

"I don't know what you mean," she said in a little voice.

"Yes you do, Alix Carey. Instead of . . . oh, let me ask you a question: Did you believe that your John loved you?"

"Yes." It was only a whisper.

"But you thought he loved another woman. Did you think that other woman was the one who would make him happy, or did you think that your love was so great—so enduring for him—that it was right for him? Did you think that all the beauty of your love would give him beauty all his life? Were you willing to sacrifice everything for him if need be?"

"Oh, yes!" Alix said it with certainty.

"Then why did you run away? You were so little that your love couldn't stand up to your pride. You were afraid to take your chance."

Alix said nothing for a little while. Then:

"Why did you come here, Dorcas?"

"To do what you were afraid to do. I've come to fight you for Bill Boyd's happiness. If you marry him, he'll make you happy. You belong to the idealistic side of Bill, but what have you got to give him?"

"I'd try."

"You'd try? Alix, I love him with that kind of beauty, that sacrifice that you felt for another man! I know I'd make him happy. I know the things Bill needs. He knew it once too. All night long I've been over this thing. I've pocketed my pride because I've found my man and I'm not going to lose him because it's for his happiness!"

"Dorcas, I didn't know. What do you want me to do?"

"I want you to leave Bairdsvale tonight. Leave a note for Bill, telling him that you didn't love him. Tell him—you know how to write words—what his love for you was and what real love is. I'll see that Bairdsvale will never think unkindly of you. Then I want you to go to New York. You can't force fate, Alix. Things work out and this is going to work out. Rest now and pack this afternoon. I'll drive you to the next town. Will you or will I force you?"

Poems That Live

SHE IS FAR FROM THE LAND

She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps,
And lovers are round her, sighing;
But coldly she turns from their gaze, and weeps,
For her heart in his grave is lying.
She sings the wild songs of her dear native plains,

Every note which he loved a-awaking—

Ah! little they think, who delight in her strains,
How the heart of the minstrel is breaking.

He has lived for his love, for his country he dies,

They were all that to life had entwined him;

Nor soon shall the tears of his country be dried,
Nor long will his love stay behind him.

Oh! make her a grave where the sunbeams rest,

When they promise a glorious morrow;

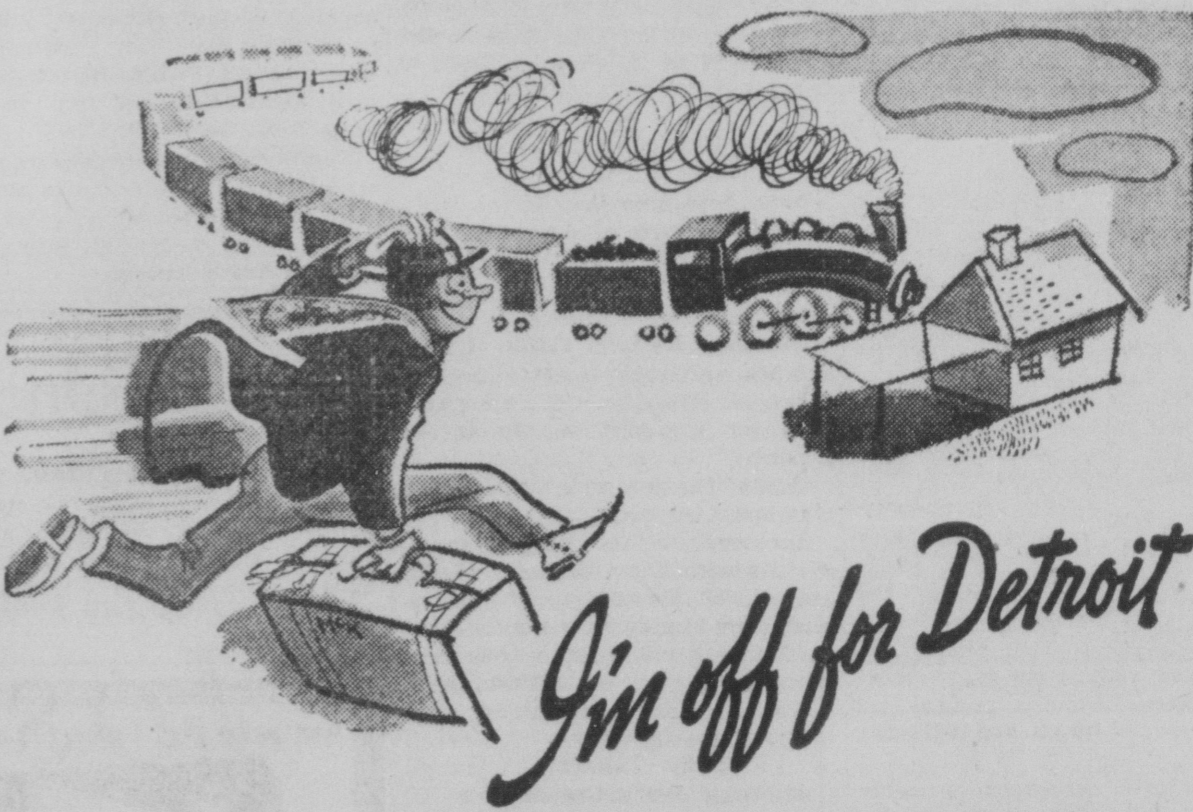

They'll shine o'er her sleep, like a smile from the west,
From her own loved island of sorrow.

YOUNG PEOPLE LIKE SPIRITED CHURCH MUSIC

DES MOINES, Ia. (UP)—Youth changes styles — even in church music.

Howard L. Brown, Los Angeles, general secretary of the California Christian Endeavor Union, visiting Des Moines, declared that because of increased activity of young people in the church, there is a growing change in church music.

Brown said that more spirited music is coming into prominence in church services because young people prefer the gospel-type of hymn to the sedate religious songs.

Youth, he said, is seeking something practical and positive instead of reading theories.

DYE MAY PLAY DESPITE HURTS OF LAST WEEK

MAROON TACKLE OUT

Ohio Favored Despite Losses to Major Opponents

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6—(UP)—Two Western conference teams that turned into the final lap of their campaigns with but one victory over a major foe clash here tomorrow when Ohio State meets the University of Chicago.

Ohio, regarded as a definite Big Ten contender and a possible national title threat at the start of the season, has beaten only Indiana among its four major foes, while Chicago's long triumph over a ranking opponent came last week at the expense of Wisconsin. Each has a victory over a minor opponent along. New York U. fell before the Bucks and Lawrence was humbled by the Maroons.

A crowd of approximately 35,000 was expected for the contest.

Buckeyes Favored
Although beaten by Pittsburgh, Northwestern and Notre Dame, Ohio State ruled a top-heavy favorite over Chicago.

The meeting tomorrow will be the eleventh between the teams since the series was inaugurated in 1920. Ohio has won six of the contests, Chicago two and two have been ties. The last Chicago victory came in 1923.

A year ago the Maroons, with the peerless Jay Berwanger as the spearhead of their attack, threw a scare into the Bucks before losing 20 to 13. Chicago led 13 to 0 at the half but wilted in the final periods when unable to match Ohio's reserve strength.

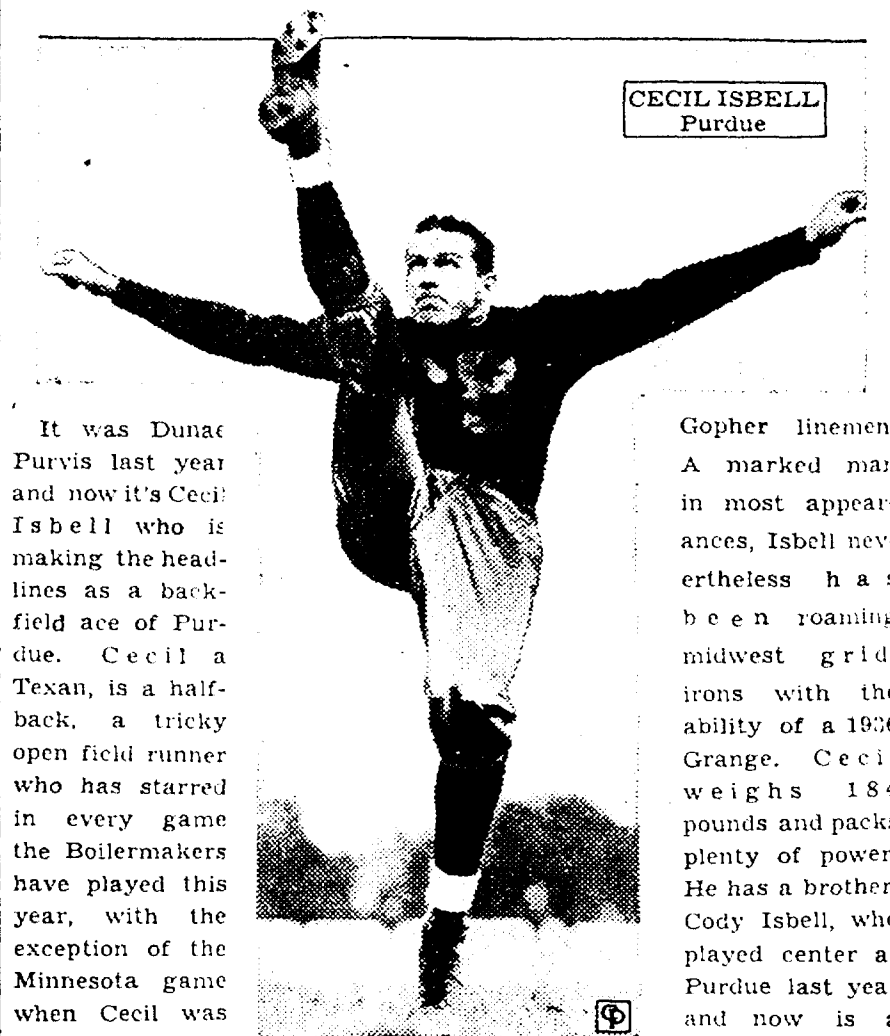

Neither team will have its full power tomorrow. The Bucks' attack, already hampered by the shoulder injury of "Jumpin' Joe" Williams, received another jolt when Johnny Bettridge, the hard running senior halfback, was declared ineligible yesterday because of scholastic deficiencies. Bettridge had started every game this season. The sophomore kicking wizard, Howard Wedebrook, was to replace him.

Boz Fitzgerald, the Maroon's regular left end and star punter, will not see action. He was injured in the Wisconsin contest.

"Tippy" Dye, the Bucks' mite quarterback who received a head injury late in the Notre Dame game, has taken things easy this week but may be used. It was expected however, that Coach Francis A. Schmidt would give Nick Wasylik the starting call.

The Ohio backfield of Wasylik, Mike Kabealo, Wedebrook and Jim McDonald will contain two excellent punters but will be sorely lacking in a fast running back

CLEVELAND SEES "DAWN TO DUSK" GRID PROGRAM

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 6—(UP)—A "dawn to dusk" football program will be held by Cleveland scholastic teams in the giant lake front stadium here tomorrow.

The program, unique in gridiron annals, calls for five games involving city teams. The first contest will be played early tomorrow morning and it is hoped the fifth can be finished by the time darkness sets in. If not floodlights will be turned on.

The "carnival" program was expected to attract a record breaking collective crowd of approximately 40,000 fans. Receipts will be used to establish a medical fund to defray the expenses of boys injured during athletic competition.

Teams participating and the schedule follows: Glenview vs. South; West vs. Lincoln; Cathedral Latin vs. Collinwood; East Tech vs. West Tech; and Holy Name vs. John Adams.

BOOSTERS PLAY COLUMBUS TEAM SUNDAY AT 2:30

Circleville Boosters will play football Sunday at Denny's field against the Southern Merchants of Columbus. The game is scheduled at 2:30 o'clock.

able to slant off the tackles and sweep the ends.

The Bucks, with their 200 pound average, will have a five pound per man advantage on the line. The Maroon backs will scale 150 to 172 for Ohio.

About This And That In Many Sports

Bettridge Through

The college football career of Johnny Bettridge, speedy Sagdusky halfback at Ohio State, is completed, unceremoniously, before schedule and without much ado—Mr. Bettridge's grades were so low that he just couldn't remain on the team. * * * Johnny Bettridge has been a good football player ever since his sophomore year. He understudied for Frank Boucher until the Kent star graduated and left the halfback post open to the best competitor—Bettridge was it—Always a hard driver and a fighter, Bettridge will be missed, but not so greatly, since his ineligibility means an underclassman will get a chance for some experience that he wouldn't have gained otherwise. * * * How about Bill Booth? * * *

Grimes on Bench?

Burleigh Grimes' appointment as manager of the Brooklyn's is good proof that the owners of the club would much rather have a stormy petrel at the head of the organization than a smart baseball man—A manager who really knows how to handle a club and how to get the most out of it must be on the playing field every day—Grimes spent much of his time in the grandstand after banishment over too strenuous argument with Association arbiters during his short stay at Louisville. * * *

Selections Listed

This is "pick-em" day; Monday will be a big day. * * * Here goes: Ohio over Chicago, Minnesota over Iowa, Pennsylvania over Michigan, Northwestern over Wisconsin, Indiana over Syracuse, Fordham and Purdue, tie, Notre Dame over Navy, Holy Cross over Colgate, Princeton over Cornell, Dartmouth over Columbia, Washington over Stanford, Southern California over California, Tulane over Alabama, Nebraska over Kansas, Pitt over Penn State, Ohio Wesleyan and Cincinnati, tie, Carnegie Tech over N. Y. U., Harvard over Virginia, and Georgia over Florida. * * *

BOBCATS HAVE CHANCE TO WIN TIE FOR TITLE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6—(UP)—Championship possibilities in the Buckeye and Ohio conferences will be narrowed by contests that feature a 20 game program involving state teams tomorrow.

The Buckeye, with one of the closest races in its history, has two championship games scheduled. The outcome of the contests is certain to see the elimination of one team and possibly two from the titular picture.

In the Ohio conference, three teams have perfect records and five others have dropped only one decision within the ranks. Seven games between members of the circuit will reduce the top-flight teams.

Outside conference ranks, Western Reserve, the state's lone undefeated and untied eleven, faces an intra-city foe, John Carroll.

The Buckeye program is topped by the contest between Ohio University and the University of Dayton at Dayton.

Ohio U., the 1935 conference champion, can go into a tie for second place with Marshall and retain a chance of sharing the crown if it won last season if it turns back Dayton.

The Bobcats have played three league games. They have a record of a win, a loss and a tie. A defeat tomorrow would eliminate them. Dayton has broken even in four games and must triumph to remain in the running.

The other conference game, between Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Cincinnati at Cincinnati, will see the elimination of the losing team. Wesleyan and Cincinnati each have one victory and two defeats in the league.

UNBEATEN GRID TEAMS FAVORED TO WIN GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(UP)—Two of the nation's three major undefeated, untied football teams see action this week and both will continue their triumphant marches, according to selections made today by United Press sports writers.

Marquette will have no trouble against Creighton while Northwestern, which humbled mighty Minnesota last week, should have an easy time against Wisconsin. Santa Clara is idle, tuning up for its annual battle on Nov. 15 with St. Mary's.

HE'S THE CAPTAIN

James Nesbit
Alabama

PROBABLY the outstanding characteristic of James (Bubber) Nesbit, captain and fullback of the University of Alabama team, is his dependability.

That word describes this brilliant leader of Old Alabama, who is a senior and one of the few backfield holdovers from the 1935 squad.

Bubber, weighing 176 pounds and hailing from Bainbridge, Ga., is as sturdy on defense as he is on attack. He makes a good line-crasher to have in a backfield that is saturated with open-field runners.

WALDORF'S CREW PICKED TO WIN BIG TEN CROWN

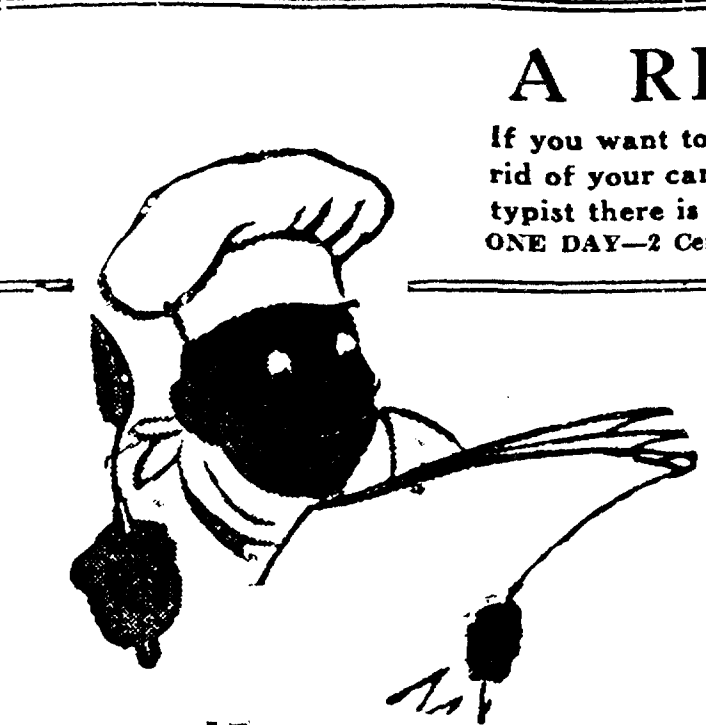

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(UP)—Lynn Waldorf's November Wildcats, who smothered the touted co-champions of Minnesota and Ohio State during the reconstruction days of October, were odds-on favorites today to give Northwestern its first undisputed Big 10 championship with a victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

The Wildcats appeared unstoppable after upsetting the mud-spattered Gophers in Dwyer stadium last week. The soft touches of the campaign are just coming up.

A victory over Wisconsin or Michigan, neither of whom has whipped a conference foe all year, will bring Northwestern its first uncontested title claim. It can drop one game and still come out on top but it isn't likely, for the Wildcats are gunning for national honors.

34 WOLVERINES READY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—(UP)—Thirty-four Michigan Wolverines arrived here today and went through a long workout for the Penn game. Two new men will start for Michigan: Fred Zien, junior, for George Marzone at right guard, and Jim Lincoln at right tackle for Earle Luby.

BUCKEYES HAVE WEIGHT EDGE OVER CHICAGO CREW FOR SATURDAY TILT

DYE MAY PLAY DESPITE HURTS OF LAST WEEK

Backfield Expected to be Composed of Bigger, But Slower Men

MAROON TACKLE OUT

Ohio Favored Despite Losses to Major Opponents

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6—(UP)—Two Western conference teams that turned into the final lap of their campaigns with but one victory over a major foe clash here tomorrow when Ohio State meets the University of Chicago.

Ohio, regarded as a definite Big Ten contender and a possible national title threat at the start of the season, has beaten only Indiana among its four major foes, while Chicago's long triumph over a ranking opponent came last week at the expense of Wisconsin. Each has a victory over a minor opponent along. New York U. fell before the Bucks and Lawrence was humbled by the Maroons.

A crowd of approximately 35,000 was expected for the contest.

Buckeyes Favored

Although beaten by Pittsburgh, Northwestern and Notre Dame, Ohio State ruled a top-heavy favorite over Chicago.

The meeting tomorrow will be the eleventh between the team since the series was inaugurated in 1920. Ohio has won six of the contests, Chicago two and two have been ties. The last Chicago victory came in 1923.

A year ago the Maroons, with the peerless Jay Berwanger as the spearhead of their attack, threw a scare into the Bucks before losing 20 to 13. Chicago led 13 to 0 at the half but wilted in the final periods when unable to match Ohio's reserve strength.

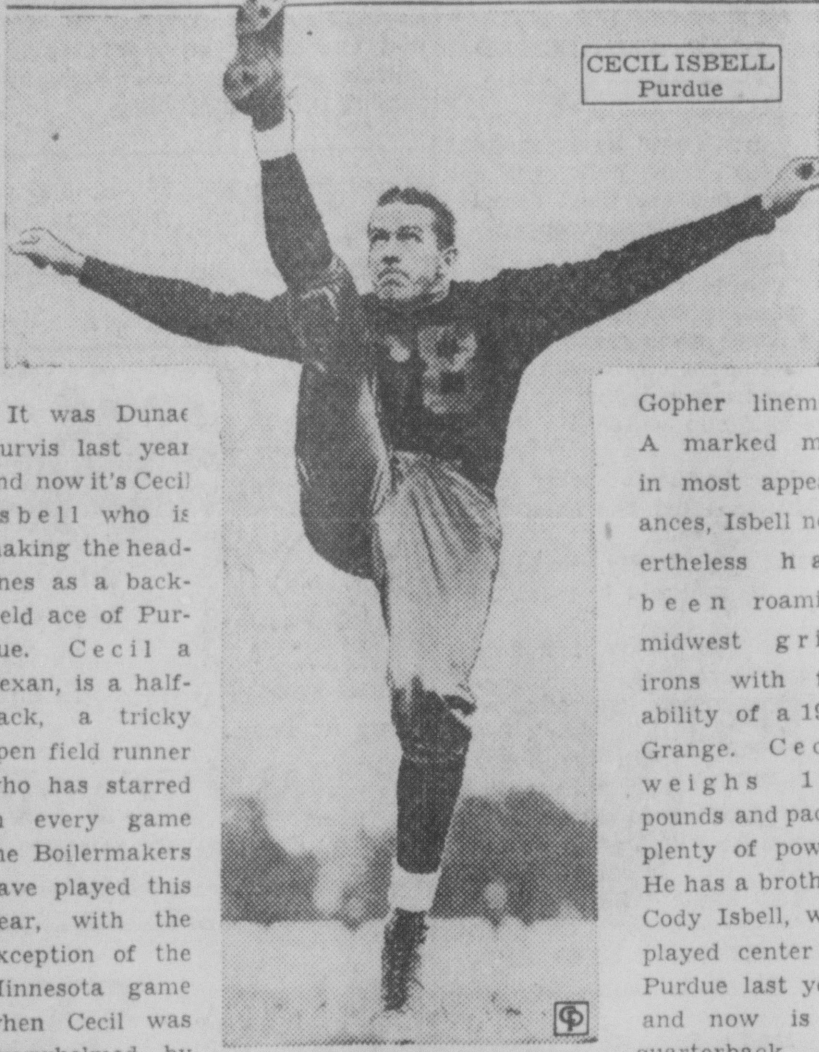

Neither team will have its full power tomorrow. The Bucks' attack, already hampered by the shoulder injury of "Jumpin' Joe" Williams, received another jolt when Johnny Bettridge, the hard running senior halfback, was declared ineligible yesterday because of scholastic deficiencies. Bettridge had started every game this season. The sophomore kicking wizard, Howard Wedebrook, was to replace him.

Boz Fitzgerald, the Maroon's regular left end and star punter, will not see action. He was injured in the Wisconsin contest.

"Tippy" Dye, the Bucks' mite quarterback who received a head injury late in the Notre Dame game, has taken things easy this week but may be used. It was expected however, that Coach Francis A. Schmidt would give Nick Wasylik the starting call.

The Ohio backfield of Wasylik, Mike Kabealo, Wedebrook and Jim McDonald will contain two excellent punters but will be sorely lacking in a fast running back

All-American Roll Call

CECIL ISBELL
Purdue

It was Dunac Purvis last year and now it's Cecil Isbell who is making the headlines as a backfield ace of Purdue.

Cecil, a Texan, is a halfback, a tricky open field runner who has starred in every game the Boilermakers have played this year, with the exception of the Minnesota game when Cecil was overwhelmed by Gopher linemen. A marked man in most appearances, Isbell nevertheless has been roaming midwest gridirons with the ability of a 1936 Grange. Cecil weighs 184 pounds and packs plenty of power. He has a brother, Cody Isbell, who played center at Purdue last year and now is a quarterback.

About This And That In Many Sports

Bettridge Through

The college football career of Johnny Bettridge, speedy Sandusky halfback at Ohio State, is completed, unceremoniously, before schedule and without much ado—Mr. Bettridge's grades were so low that he just couldn't remain on the team. * * * Johnny Bettridge has been a good football player ever since his sophomore year—He understudied for Frank Boucher until the Kent star graduated and left the halfback post open to the best competitor—Bettridge was it—Always a hard driver and a fighter, Bettridge will be missed, but not so greatly, since his ineligibility means an underclassman will get a chance for some experience that he wouldn't have gained otherwise. * * * How about Bill Booth? * * *

Grimes on Bench?

Burleigh Grimes' appointment as manager of the Brooklyns is good proof that the owners of the club would much rather have a stormy petrel at the head of the organization than a smart baseball man—A manager who really knows how to handle a club and how to get the most out of it must be on the playing field every day—Grimes spent much of his time in the grandstand after banishment over too strenuous argument with Association arbiters during his short stay at Louisville. * * *

Selections Listed

This is "pick-em" day: Monday will be alibi day. * * * Here goes: Ohio over Chicago, Minnesota over Iowa, Pennsylvania over Michigan, Northwestern over Wisconsin, Indiana over Syracuse, Fordham and Purdue, tie, Notre Dame over Navy, Holy Cross over Colgate, Princeton over Cornell, Dartmouth over Columbia, Washington over Stanford, Southern California over California, Tulane over Alabama, Nebraska over Kansas, Pitt over Penn State, Ohio Wesleyan and Cincinnati, tie, Carnegie Tech over N. Y. U., Harvard over Virginia, and Georgia over Florida. * * *

BOBCATS HAVE CHANCE TO WIN TIE FOR TITLE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6—(UP)—Championship possibilities in the Buckeye and Ohio conferences will be narrowed by contests that feature a 20 game program involving state teams tomorrow.

The Buckeye, with one of the closest races in its history, has two championship games scheduled. The outcome of the contests is certain to see the elimination of one team and possibly two from the titular picture.

In the Ohio conference, three teams have perfect records and five others have dropped only one decision within the ranks. Seven games between members of the circuit will reduce the top-flight teams.

Outside conference ranks, Western Reserve, the state's lone undefeated and untied eleven, faces an intra-city foe, John Carroll.

The Buckeye program is topped by the contest between Ohio University and the University of Dayton at Dayton.

Ohio U., the 1935 conference champion, can go into a tie for second place with Marshall and retain a chance of sharing the crown it won last season if it turns back Dayton.

The other conference game, between Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Cincinnati at Cincinnati, will see the elimination of the losing team. Wesleyan and Cincinnati each have one victory and two defeats in the league.

UNBEATEN GRID TEAMS FAVORED TO WIN GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(UP)—Two of the nation's three major undefeated, untied football teams see action this week and both will continue their triumphant marches, according to selections made today by United Press sports writers.

Marquette will have no trouble against Creighton while Northwestern, which humbled mighty Minnesota last week, should have an easy time against Wisconsin. Santa Clara is idle, tuning up for its annual battle on Nov. 15 with St. Mary's.

HE'S THE CAPTAIN

James Nesbit
Alabama

PROBABLY the outstanding characteristic of James (Bubber) Nesbit, captain and fullback of the University of Alabama team, is his dependability.

That word describes this brilliant leader of Ol' Alabama, who is a senior and one of the few backfield holdovers from the 1935 squad.

Bubber, weighing 176 pounds and hailing from Bainbridge, Ga., is as sturdy on defense as he is on attack. He makes a good line-crasher to have in a backfield that is saturated with open-field runners.

WALDORF'S CREW PICKED TO WIN BIG TEN CROWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(UP)—Lynn Waldorf's November Wildcats, who smothered the touted co-champions of Minnesota and Ohio State during the reconstruction days of October, were odds-on favorites today to give Northwestern its first undisputed Big 10 championship with a victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

The Wildcats appeared unstoppable after upsetting the mud-spattered Gophers in Dyche stadium last week. The soft touches of the campaign are just coming up.

A victory over Wisconsin or Michigan, neither of whom has whipped a conference foe all year, will bring Northwestern its first uncontested title claim. It can drop one game and still come out on top but it isn't likely, for the Wildcats are gunning for national honors.

34 WOLVERINES READY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—(UP)—Thirty-four Michigan Wolverines arrived here today and went through a long workout for the Penn game. Two new men will start for Michigan: Fred Ziem, junior, for George Marzone at right guard, and Jim Lincoln at right tackle for Earle Luby.

Here's how easy it is:

Decide what you want to say in your ad. Then write, leaving out unnecessary words.

CALL 782 if you have a phone or drop by the service desk, Herald office. Read your ad to the ad-taker. She will help you with it, perhaps shorten it, and then will read it back to you for O. K.

That's all . . . except to sit back and wait for results which won't be long in coming because nearly everyone reads the Herald Classified Ads.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

LEAD DUMMY'S WEAKEST SUIT

AT NO TRUMPS lead dummy's weakest suit, when you hope to strike partner's unbid strength. This is an important rule to bear in mind, often saving game when no other lead will do so, as illustrated by today's play.

- ♠ K 10 5 2
♦ 10 6 5 3
♣ A Q 9 8
- ♠ J 7
♥ K Q 10
♣ 8 4 2
- ♠ A Q
♥ A J 9 7 2
♦ A 7
♣ J 10 5 3

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; North, 2-Clubs; South, 3-Hearts, wanting to hear further from partner; North, 3-Spades; South, 3-No Trumps, which held.

The opening lead was the K of hearts, right up to the bidder of that suit. Declarer allowed West to hold the trick. As explained later on, that hesitant policy cost declarer game. West was not stupid enough to lead again up to the declarer. He had to shift suits. He knew that. When trying to give partner a lead which he cannot make, the procedure differs with the kind of make being played. Against a trump call, lead through dummy's strength. Against a no trump call, lead dummy's weakest suit. Playing at a suit call, declarer may be very weak in a side suit. Playing at no trumps, probably declarer has some strength in each unbid suit. Declarer and dummy probably hold nearly all the strength in a suit where dummy is weak, partner may hold considerable no trump strength. So West shifted to a lead of diamonds.

Dummy played low. East played the 9. Being allowed to hold the first trick, East led his K, which declarer had to take. The return lead of the J of clubs lost on a finesse, to East's K. That player then took his two good diamonds, just setting the contract a trick, in the only possible way.

Had West followed the rule for leads against a trump call, he would have led through dummy's major tenace in clubs. East would have won with his K, but declarer would have gone game, by winning 4 spade tricks, 1 heart trick, 1 diamond trick and 3 club tricks, as a minimum.

South did not play the hand well, thereby losing game needlessly. When West led the K of hearts, declarer should have won with his Ace. There was no sense in waiting for the leader to decide upon his next act. He would have been foolish to make a second lead of hearts up to declarer's tenace. Immediate play of South's Ace of hearts would have given declarer 4 spade tricks, 1 heart trick, 1 diamond trick and 3 club tricks.

Having taken his Ace of hearts, declarer would have lost the next trick to East's K of clubs. A return lead of hearts would have given partner only two tricks in the suit, and at the same time established a heart trick for declarer.

SINGING PUT BEFORE JOB

PITTSBURG, Cal. (UP)—Joseph Wagoner was painting a bathroom in a new residence. Also he was singing lustily, "Is It True What They Say About Dixie." A large crowd collected to hear him sing. Then his boss arrived also. The boss told him either to quit his job or quit singing. He quit the job.

More Farm Orchards Urged

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (UP)—A well-tended orchard on every farm would cut down the number of mortgages in agricultural districts of this country, according to J. W. Eakin, forester and orchardist. He declared that he had never seen under mortgage a farm on which there was a good orchard.

Details for a huge Pickaway county Boy Scout rally to be held Monday, November 16, and for the permanent reorganization of scouting in the county will be discussed at a meeting to be held at Memorial hall next Monday, November 9, promptly at 8 o'clock. Reed Shafer, temporary chairman of a group of prominent local citizens who are interested in reviving scouting on an effective basis in Circleville and Pickaway county, has called the Monday meeting.

In a letter announcing the committee meeting for Monday, Shafer urged business and civic leaders to action, claiming that "this important work can be postponed no longer."

"The 1936 Pumpkin Show and the national election are now history," he said. "It is high time we shake off the insanity fringe and get down to business. With fine community spirit evident in producing one of the finest fall celebrations in the state, it is hoped that Scouting as a community enterprise will meet with similar success."

Organizations to Aid
The Circleville Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club and the Kiwanis Club, and many others have promised support of their organizations in advancing the project.

At the committee meeting Monday it is expected that an exceptionally fine program will be arranged for the big rally the following week. In addition to the participation of local Boy Scouts, efforts have been made to secure a speaker from the national council of the Boy Scouts of America, for the evening. Fathers, mothers, scouters, and friends will be invited to the rally.

At the present time all scouting activities in Circleville are centered around Howard Hall post No. 134, American Legion, which, in addition to furnishing the Scouts a meeting place, is providing leadership. It is the hope of many men of the community to interest other organizations, such as churches, to assist in the work of preserving youth for better citizenship.

Robert H. Heistand, scout executive of the Central Ohio Area Council, will be present at the committee meeting to assist in making plans, as will Howard Kautz, field executive, of Lancaster.

Over fifty men, all of whom have promised to serve in the movement, have been asked to attend the committee meeting and take part in the discussion.

unanticipated. The warden in charge picked up the telephone. It went dead before he could utter a word. A detail was rushed to a sub station of the Alabama Power company within the walls which supplies supplementary power when needed. The convicts had been there before, wrecking its equipment.

Finally, by patching loops, power was brought into the prison from the outside. Beams from great searchlights explored the prison yard. They fell on a ladder propped against the wall over which 10 men had to freedom. One, Robert Weems, 22, was recaptured a few hours later in the Montgomery railroad yards.

Most Men Robbers

The missing convicts were Frank Carter, 24, serving 11 years for robbery; Russell Copeland, 27, serving 30 years for robbery; Harold Koernick, 27, 10 years for robbery; J. A. Hamrick, 32, life for robbery; F. E. Schooley, 30, forty years for robbery; Lum Hale, 29, life for murder; Richard Dunn, 20, 25 years for robbery; Olin Raburn, 25, 10 years for murder; Paul Wheller, 34, 10 years for robbery.

Hamrick ran through a tunnel connecting the mill with the power house and stood over Engineer J. L. McCullough with a sledge. Schooley and Carter followed and the three tied McCullough and a trusty assistant. They then threw the master switches, and, apparently following a well thought out plan proceeded against the telephone exchange in the same building and the power sub station.

All prisoners were locked in. Not account for seven others instantly and prison authorities escaping with the three leaders.

er disembarking from his private car and made one of the typical little speeches which have endeared him to American citizens.

"My friends," he said into a microphone which actuated loud speakers all over the grassy plaza, "I am very glad to come back among you, my old neighbors."

"I formed the good habit of coming to Washington when I was five years old and I am glad that habit will not be broken for the next four years."

The president called Washington "the most beautiful city in all the world," and thanked its residents who rose early and went out into the cold, brisk morning, to greet him. It was typical "Roosevelt weather."

Estimates Unreliable

Chief of Police Ernest Brown estimated that 100,000 Washingtonians jammed every square inch of the plaza, where they waved small American flags, welcoming signs, their hats, and their hankchiefs. At least 50,000 more were estimated to have stood along the line of the drive between the station and the White House.

All federal clerks and school children were excused to attend the celebration. Even the city's department stores remained closed for an hour.

At 8:30 a. m., a switch engine with a secret service agent riding the cab, nosed the private car, "Pioneer," into the Union Station track. Then, the engine chuffed away, leaving the president's car by itself on a switch near the station entrance, where the navy band played "Hail to the Chief."

The black shades of the car remained tightly drawn as leading New Dealers hurried in the back door to shake the president's hand. They included all members of the cabinet except Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and Secretary of Navy Claude Swanson.

At 8:42 a. m., there was a cheer from the crowd squeezing its faces against the station fence. Mr. Roosevelt appeared on the platform, wearing a natty double-breasted gray suit and a gray felt hat, which had seen better days. He use it, however, to wave his greeting. Then he climbed into a sleek gray touring car, a 1937 model, with red wheels, for his triumphant ride to the executive mansion.

As he rode down wide Pennsylvania avenue spectators repeatedly broke through police lines but were pushed back by motorcycle officers who spread out far ahead of the president's car.

The board emphasized that while the undertaking of listing all workers is of unprecedented proportions, the plan in which 45,000 post office employees will cooperate will be conducted with all possible convenience to employers and employees.

NINE DESPERATE CONVICTS FLEE ALABAMA JAIL

unanticipated. The warden in charge picked up the telephone. It went dead before he could utter a word. A detail was rushed to a sub station of the Alabama Power company within the walls which supplies supplementary power when needed. The convicts had been there before, wrecking its equipment.

Finally, by patching loops, power was brought into the prison from the outside. Beams from great searchlights explored the prison yard. They fell on a ladder propped against the wall over which 10 men had to freedom. One, Robert Weems, 22, was recaptured a few hours later in the Montgomery railroad yards.

Most Men Robbers

The missing convicts were Frank Carter, 24, serving 11 years for robbery; Russell Copeland, 27, serving 30 years for robbery; Harold Koernek, 27, 10 years for robbery; J. A. Hamrick, 32, life for robbery; F. E. Schooley, 30, forty years for robbery; Lum Hale, 29, life for murder; Richard Dunn, 20, 25 years for robbery; Olin Raburn, 25, 10 years for murder; Paul Wheller, 34, 10 years for robbery.

Hamrick ran through a tunnel connecting the mill with the power house and stood over Engineer J. L. McCullough with a sledge. Schooley and Carter followed and the three tied McCullough and a trusty assistant. They then threw the master switches, and, apparently following a well thought out plan proceeded against the telephone exchange in the same building and the power sub station.

All prisoners were locked in in-could not account for seven others stantly and prison authorities escaping with the three leaders.

er disembarking from his private car and made one of the typical little speeches which have endeared him to American citizens.

"My friends," he said into a microphone which actuated loud speakers all over the grassy plaza, "I am very glad to come back among you, my old neighbors. I formed the good habit of coming to Washington when I was five years old and I am glad that habit will not be broken for the next four years."

The president called Washington "the most beautiful city in all the world," and thanked its residents who rose early and went out into the cold, brisk morning, to greet him. It was typical "Roosevelt weather."

Estimates Unreliable

Chief of Police Ernest Brown estimated that 100,000 Washingtonians jammed every square inch of the plaza, where they waved small American flags, welcoming signs, their hats, and their hankchiefs. At least 50,000 more were estimated to have stood along the line of the drive between the station and the White House.

All federal clerks and school children were excused to attend the celebration. Even the city's department stores remained closed for an hour.

At 8:30 a. m., a switch engine with a secret service agent riding the cab, nosed the private car, "Pioneer," into the Union Station track. Then, the engine chuffed away, leaving the president's car by itself on a switch near the station entrance, where the navy band played "Hail to the Chief."

The black shades of the car remained tightly drawn as leading New Dealers hurried in the back door to shake the president's hand. They included all members of the cabinet except Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and Secretary of Navy Claude Swanson.

At 8:42 a. m., there was a cheer from the crowd squeezing its faces against the station fence. Mr. Roosevelt appeared on the platform, wearing a natty double-breasted gray suit and a gray felt hat, which had seen better days. He use it, however, to wave his greeting. Then he climbed into a sleek gray touring car, a 1937 model, with red wheels, for his triumphant ride to the executive mansion.

SO huge was the Democratic landslide in Ohio, that Representative Chester C. Bolton, multi-millionaire congressman from a "silk-stocking" district in Cleveland that never previously had gone Democratic, went down to defeat before a virtual unknown, Anthony A. Fieger. Bolton was chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee. He was instrumental in bringing the Republican national convention to Cleveland, raising the necessary funds. He was even mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination.

latter's wife, carrying an enormous bouquet of chrysanthemums and roses, which two small girls representing a Greek civic society presented the president.

As soon as Mr. Roosevelt was seated, the cavalcade started off between cheering lines of Washingtonians and behind platoon after platoon of motorcycle police.

Hardly had the parade started when the president's car paused briefly in front of the station for him to say his words of thanks.

As he rode down wide Pennsylvania avenue spectators repeatedly broke through police lines but were pushed back by motorcycle officers who spread out far ahead of the president's car.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived at the White House at 9:06 a. m.

workers, as charged by Republican National Committee Chairman John Hamilton and other Republican speakers near the close of the campaign.

All persons working for salary or wages, excepting those engaged in agriculture, domestic services in private homes, government service and a few other excluded occupations, are eligible.

May Retire At 65

The plan, the board said, will enable millions of workers to retire at the age of 65 with a monthly income for life, the amount of the income being based on their previous wage records. If the worker dies before reaching 65 stored up cash values will be paid to his family.

The board emphasized that while the undertaking of listing all workers is of unprecedented proportions, the plan in which 45,000 post office employees will cooperate will be conducted with all possible convenience to employers and employees.
